This course provides a brief overview of play therapy for those who are new, but the main focus is how to work in the playroom with children who have experienced trauma. The training explores how trauma impacts us from emotionally and neurobiologically. Students will learn how to help both children and their parents when life has been so radically changed!. This class will introduce the student to Somatic Experiencing as a way to treat trauma in the playroom. Students will be introduced to both play therapy and trauma theory, neurobiology of play therapy and trauma and learn some wonderful and playful ways to help kids who have been traumatized while they are engaged in the play therapy process!

Goals and Objectives

This workshop is designed to help the student:

Discuss the impact of trauma on the child neuro-biologically and demonstrate ways to help the child become aware of this impact through play

List the basic skills and techniques of the Somatic Experience Model

Provide rationale for the use of 3 interventions of play therapy that demonstrate these basic skills.

List and explain the reason for utilization of 8 to 10 Play therapy interventions.

Describe 3 ways to help parents help their child heal from traumatic experiences.
